LADIES' DELIGHT!
RELIEF COME AT LAST.
J. WISNOR, Washington Machine, Pa. tent Sept. 25th, 1857, is a large 10 with zinc fitted on the bottom, also on the outer side of the rubber. It stands on a stool, and weighs about 25 lbs.; is simple and handy and has been thoroughly examined and tried by thousands at the West within the past year, who pronounce it to be the best labor ever offered to the public. It has been tested sufficiently long to prove that when ever it has been used properly, it will tell a better story for itself than I can communicate.
Give it a trial, and you will be entirely satisfied of its superiority over all other machines.

Speech of Dr. David King.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I thank you from the bottom of my heart for the kind reception which you have given to the toast that honors the Historical Society, in which, as a citizens of Newport, I have so deep and sincere an interest. I have witnessed, not without deep emotion, the enthusiasm, and the joy which pervade the vast assemblage of the Sons and Daughters of Newport, or, if you will, of Rhode Island. Wisely, as if by an enchanted hand, has our honored Mayor, erected this temporary fabric for our accommodation, since no edifice, previously existing here, could contain within its walls an assembly so large, and animated by feelings so intense, and so universal. How can such feelings be compressed within material walls? It is to give a free expansion to thoughts and feelings honorable to our common nature. It is to allow all who honor this festival with their presence, to be within sight, and within hearing of each other. I catch from the audience the freedom of the occasion. And you will find me trespassing beyond the proper limits of a sentiment to answer, which the President of the day has called me upon to platform. Why is it that I observe this intense feeling which glows in this assembly? It is because we have consecrated this day to a sincere and cordial expression of our love and admiration of the land of our birth. Outward nature is beautiful and grand; and while we enjoy the verdure of our native soil, the delicious air that breathes over our fertile fields, the unequalled beauty of our harbor, and the idea that float upon its surface, and the grandeur of Old Ocean, impressed upon our imagination from youth with an everlasting power. We cannot forget that Rhode Island, I mean the island of Rhode Island, is not only endeared to our hearts by being the land of our birth, but embelished in our memory for her illustrious past, her great virtues, her great men, and her great achievements.

What has been the great characteristic of our people? I say the love of freedom, the true spirit of liberty, has animated the breasts of Rhode Islanders from the commencement of the colony. In 1638 Coddington, with a number of noble associates, exiles from Massachusetts, purchased this island of those magnanimous Narragansett sachems, Canonius and Miantinoh, and laid here the foundation of a new State. She had the substance. She elected her own magistrates; she made her own laws, and regulated all her internal concerns. Coddington, to whom justice has never been done, I say it from long and profound study of his character—Coddington, to whom justice has never been done, occupied the same position in the colony of Rhode Island, that John Winthrop occupied in the colony of Massachusetts. Both were remarkable men, men of sound judgment and great practical ability. The legislation of Rhode Island, during his administration, was adapted to the exigencies of the colony, and was founded on the best maxims of the age. But on the subject of religious liberty, on the 10th of March, 1641, Rhode Island, while Coddington was Governor, promulgated a new maxim of state policy, and anticipated by more than a century the enlightened legislation of a future day. It is with pride that I say it, that here on this very spot, Coddington and his associates, in 1641, enacted the first law granting complete religious liberty that was ever embodied in the legislation of a civilized State. And this was accomplished by "ouster," noble outcasts, as you and I will believe, as Burke says, "not sent out, but thrown out upon the bleak and barren shore of a desolate wilderness, three thousand miles from all civilized intercourse. I say three thousand miles from all civilized intercourse, because at that time Rhode Island was denied intercourse with her civilized neighbors of Massachusetts.

Let us recollect, on this day consecrated to good feeling, the motto of their Seal of State—a motto which will be appreciated at least by the fairer and better portion of this audience—Amor vincit omnia. Love conquers all things, indicative of the peace and consequently successful character of their policy. Rhode Island continued in a career of prosperity, not indeed without some adversity, under the successive charters of the Earl of Warwick and of Charles II. Her commerce, her fisheries, and her ship-building, all aided in the growth of her resources. In common with her sister colonies, she submitted to the principle of commercial monopoly, imposed by England from 1660 to 1764. But the Stamp Act in 1764, inaugurating a new system of commercial servitude, was resisted instinctively from the first by Rhode Island. In October, 1764, Rhode Island denied the authority of Parliament to enact laws of trade. She appointed a committee of correspondence, and recommended to the other colonies Union, for the protection of colonial rights and privileges. On the 15th of February, 1766, her remonstrance, like those of Connecticut, Virginia, and Carolina, was rejected with scorn by the British Parliament; and from that period until the Revolution, with the exception of a short interval, just after the repeal of the Stamp Act, the spirit of liberty in Rhode Island was in open defiance to the authority of the Mother Country.

In the summer of 1765, a band of five hundred men seized one of the boats of the Maidstone, an English ship-of-war in the harbor of Newport, dragged it up Queen street to the public square at the head of Broad street, where it was burned amidst the execrations of an indignant people. The Maidstone had tyrannically persecuted our marine and illegally imprisoned our seamen.

On the 27th of August, the offices of Augustus Johnson, Martin Howard, and Dr. Thomas Moffat, the Stamp Master, and the two indicators of the Stamp Act, were drawn in open day in a cart through the streets of Newport, and were afterwards hung up on a gallows erected near the Town House, amidst the derisive shouts of the people. On the following day the houses of Moffat and Howard were assailed, and nearly destroyed by what was called in the Tory papers of the day a mob, but which you and I will believe was composed of sons of liberty. On the 17th of June, 1769, the armed revenue sloop Liberty was boarded by some of the people of Newport. Her cables were cut, and she was allowed to drive on shore at the Point. Her masts and bowsprit were then cut away. Her boats were taken by the people and drawn through the streets of Newport to the Liberty Tree, where they were burned as an offering on the altar of Liberty. By the direction of the Collector this armed revenue sloop had repeatedly and provokingly annoyed our vessels by overhauling them, when leaving our harbor for their destined ports.

In December, 1766, Moffat asked of Rhode Island compensation for his losses, incurred by the popular tumult at Newport during the Stamp Act. His claims were founded on the resolves of the British Parliament, and the particular recommendation of the King. Mettiff Bowler, once a distinguished citizen of Newport, and the Speaker of the Assembly, declared this claim to be groundless and totally inoperative on the minds of the free and independent representatives of the Rhode Island colony. The Press in Rhode Island was clear and explicit in its denunciations of the commercial tyranny of Great Britain. The Newport Mercury, in the year 1790, had for its motto this remarkable passage—removable for exceeding in plainness and daring any ever adopted by any Print in any other colony or in any other town: "Undaunted by tyrants, we'll die or be free." All honor to the memory of Solomon Southwick, the Editor and Proprietor of the Newport Mercury in 1770.

On the 9th of June 1772 the Gaspee was boarded by a brave set of men, our noble Brothers from Providence. The crew with Leut. Daddington were overpowered and put on shore. The vessel was burned. All honor to the memory of the men who performed it. The invasion and destruction of the King's vessels, of the sloop Liberty in Newport harbor, and of the Gaspee in Providence River, were regarded in England as the most daring insults, which Colony ever offered to the sovereignty of Britain.

They inflamed the indignation of Lord Sandwich and he declared, that he would pursue the Colony, until he obtained the disfranchisement of its charter. In 1774, on hearing of the prohibition of all importation of arms, and ammunition in America, you dismantled the King's Fort at Goat Island, took therefrom, 40 pieces of cannon, took every ball and cartridge, and drained the magazine of every grain of gun-powder. In 1775 you sent from Newport to the Camp at Cambridge, several military companies, of a part of the Army of Observation, raised by Rhode Island in the King's name.

Many of these brave soldiers never returned. Some perished in consequence of the sufferings and hardships endured in a winter's march through the wilderness in Arnold's expedition to Quebec. Some fell under the walls of Quebec, many, fighting bravely, on the battle field of the Revolution. Some few, indeed, did return, with laurels of triumph on their brows, but with no substantial reward, with nothing around, or before them but a desolate home and the stern necessity of laboring for their daily bread.

The merits and sufferings of the Army of the Revolution, its officers and soldiers, it is not necessary for me to dwell upon, as it has constituted a theme for some of the most eloquent efforts of R. I. Statesmen. The entrenchments on the hills around us, remind us not only of the glorious battle fought on Rhode Island by the troops of Sullivan, of Glover, and Greene, but of the chivalrous soldiery of France, Rochambeau, De Chastellux, Lauran and others, who, at the instance of the good king Louis XVI, our noble ally, came in the darkest moment of our struggle to our aid. Never can Americans, and certainly never can Rhode Islanders forget the debt of gratitude we owe to France, or cease to venerate the names of the French officers who fought so bravely for independence, whilst we were contending not only against England, "but the hiring swords of German hords and vassals." On this occasion we cannot forget those true Patriots and able Statesmen, citizens of Newport, Samuel Ward, William Ellery, and Henry Marchant, who contributed to cherish, to control, and to direct the Revolutionary spirit in Rhode Island. One only of their number was permitted to sign the Declaration of Independence, William Ellery. We can imagine with what a resolute heart he did it. With the elder Adams he said, "Sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish, I give my hand and my heart to this cause."

I have said enough to show that we have cause to be proud of the land of our birth. But while maintaining our political institutions, and upholding by noble efforts, American freedom, we have not neglected our literary institutions. At an early period Burdette, Redwood, and Collins gave an impulse to American learning—an influence which continues to be felt in our community, and which may lead, in time, (God grant that it may,) to the foundation of a noble University on this island of Rhode Island.

Channing, born here and trained here for his mature efforts, is undoubtedly the highest literary and philosophic character we have produced. He is said, within the walls of the Redwood Library, in the language of your toast, to have "studied Theology without an instructor." But we know that the Ecclesiastical Polity of Richard Hooker was upon our shelves when Channing frequented our Library, and no man could read Hooker without being materially aided in understanding that Universal Law, to comprehend which, the noblest minds in every age have aspired. How else could it be, for in the sublime personification of Hooker, her seat is the bosom of God, her voice the harmony of the world. Undoubtedly Channing called no man master; followed faithfully the direction of his great and noble nature, and obeyed only, submissively, the laws of the immortal intellect, and the higher laws of the Author of his being. Would that we had more Channings,—men who would be true to their nature,—true to the noble aspirations which God has implanted in their breasts. Mr. Mayor, Ladies and Gentlemen, in conclusion, in behalf of the Historical Society, I will say, that we will endeavor on every and all occasions, to protect the fair fame of our Fathers, and to preserve the memory of their achievements and virtues.

Supreme Court.

AUGUST TERM, 1859.

Present Justice Bosworth.

Justice Bosworth ordered a call of the docket, which is unusually heavy, and various matters were heard, on Thursday morning.

Thursday afternoon the charge was delivered to the Grand Jury, and they retired with the Attorney General.

On motion of Messrs. Van Zandt and Sheffield, a committee was appointed to examine Messrs. Henry A. Rice and Francis B. Peckham for admission to the Bar.

On Friday morning the Committee reported favorably upon their qualifications, and on motion of Mr. George Turner the oath was administered, and they were duly admitted to practice before all the Courts of this State.

The Grand Jury returned several indictments, and at 12 o'clock the Court adjourned until Monday next at 11 o'clock A. M., when the case George Howland versus schooner Mozart and owners, is in order. Van Zandt for plaintiff, Sheffield for defence.

The Attorney General will take up the Criminal docket on Thursday, Sept. 8.

MADAME FREZZOLINI AGAIN.—We are happy to learn from the following extract from the Newport correspondent of the New York Express, that Madame Frezzolini will give us an opportunity of listening to her delicious music at the "Ocean Hall," on Monday evening next:

"The 'Ocean' is still overflowing; and the guests seem too well contented to think of departing; but I presume the staid people begin next week. In the meantime hops, concerts and matinees are coming thicker and thicker. On Saturday morning, Madame Johnson, the celebrated pianist, will give a matinee at the 'Pillar' assisted by Madame Frezzolini; and the latter, assisted by Madame Johnson, will give a concert at the 'Ocean House,' on Monday evening, the 29th, which will probably be the last musical entertainment of the season. On this occasion the great Cantatrice will sing several of her choicest morceaux, and among them the 'Fenice Valce,' which she sings as no one else can. Such a feat of vocal execution is so wonderful, and so beautiful, reminding one of the music in the air heard by Coleridge's 'Ancient Mariner.'"

"Sometimes, dropping from the sky, I heard the skylark sing, And now, all little birds that are I heard the skylark sing, And now, all little birds that are I heard the skylark sing."

THE BUNYAN TABLEAU.—This beautiful exhibition will open at Aquidneck Hall on Monday. We clip the following from the Boston Post:

"The splendid moving mirror of Bunyan Tableau—now on exhibition at the Aquidneck Hall—is one of the most interesting and wonderful works of art the present day has afforded. It is the work of no less than ten distinguished painters, and is the most magnificent panorama ever gotten up. The renowned allegory is presented with great effect, and impresses the mind more powerfully with its great moral lessons than, if possible, the vivid language of its author."

MORE FOX RACES!—There will be two foot races to-day on the First Beach, to commence at 12 o'clock, A. Entrance free to all competitors, to be followed by a pig race. Entries must be made by 11 o'clock A. M., on the ground. We understand that "Uncle Sylvester" will for the last race enter.

There will be a Soiree Danzante at the Ocean House, this Saturday evening. Dancing commences at 9 o'clock P. M.

For pleasure or fishing excursions, see advertisement of pilot boat Dragonet in another column.

Rose Couplings. By the official correspondence, it will be seen that the Government has approved of the Rose Couplings of Lawton & Bliss, which are manufactured here by Cornelius & Baker, and which have been approved and recommended for general adoption at a meeting of the representatives of the Steam Engine Department, of this city.

BUREAU OF YARDS AND DOCKS. WASHINGTON, D. C., August, 1859.

SIR:—I enclose herewith, as requested, a copy of the report which is just received of the test made at the Washington Navy Yard, of the Rose Couplings furnished by Mr. Bliss—the report is favorable to the Couplings of Lawton & Bliss.

Respectfully,
J. M. SMITH,
Chief of the Bureau.

Mr. C. Tiers Myers, Philadelphia.

SIR:—In obedience to your order of the 12th ult., we have used the Rose Couplings and have the honor to make the following report:

Five sections of hose (250 feet) were fitted with the couplings, (4 pair.) Comparative tests were made with a like quantity of our own hose.

Experiment 1st.—Lawton & Bliss's Couplings were attached to a fire-pump, 250 feet of hose run off the reel, the nozzle connected, and steam passing through it in twenty seconds. The same result was obtained with our own couplings in thirty-three seconds.

Experiment 2d.—Lawton & Bliss's four couplings were disconnected in thirty seconds. The yard four couplings were disconnected in thirty-five seconds. They were reconnected in one minute and twelve seconds.

Experiment 3d.—A section of hose, with another put in its place in 31 seconds. With the four couplings, the change was made in thirty seconds.

Experiment 4th.—Lawton & Bliss's couplings were connected whilst a stream was passing through the hose from the fire-pump, but an effort to do it with ours failed. The hose, with the couplings of Lawton & Bliss, was then attached to one of our most powerful fire engines, and a stream forced through, when we found the couplings all perfectly tight. The wheels of one of the heaviest yard fire engines passed over one of Lawton & Bliss's couplings twice, striking with great force, without impairing its efficiency in the slightest degree.

We are of opinion that these couplings are greatly superior to our own in facility of connection, and that they are less liable to be placed out of order from rough usage.

We are respectfully your obedient servants,
W. M. L. MAURY, Lieut.
W. F. S. SANGOR, Const's Engineer.
THOMAS ARTHUR, Master Plumber.
To Capt. Frank Buchanan,
Com'd'r U. S. Navy Yard,
Washington, D. C.

The men who made this trial were men drilled in putting together the old style of coupling, and every screw was in the best of order, thus giving every possible advantage in favor of the old coupling, as they never saw the new patent until it was given them for trial. All the apparatus at the Navy Yard is a credit to any Fire Department.

W. H. BLISS.

New York Correspondence.

New York Aug. 25th, 1859.

The Opera, Church and Gignoux's Falls of Niagara, City Renovation, Chiquis, Siclas, Forrest, Extravagance, theatricals, &c. In the Operatic world great things are expected of the ensuing season. The Stockholders of the Academy of Music have directed new scenery to be painted for several new Operas, and Strackosh has gone to Europe with a twenty thousand dollar letter of credit to look up and secure the best talent. It is said that Uman and Strackosh have gone into partnership, and that Carl Formes with an opera troupe of his own will run in opposition. There is evidently a good time coming.

Sparking of artists calls to mind two magnificent pictures now on exhibition at the store of Williams & Stevens—Church's and Gignoux's Falls of Niagara. The first is a summer view of the Falls, and is, beyond all exception, one of the most beautiful and truthful copies from nature ever delineated upon canvas. Since its ownership by Messrs. Williams & Stevens, they have had a handsome engraving made of it, thousands of which now adorn the homes of refinement and taste. An attractive feature of the subscription is, that as soon as the issue of six thousand five hundred impressions is exhausted, the painting itself, valued at thousands of dollars, will be presented to the general body of subscribers, some one of whom will doubtless become the envied possessor of the most remarkable art production of the present century.

The other picture, by Gignoux, is a representation of the Falls in winter,—and a most worthy companion it is, of its predecessor. The "Heart of the Andes," another picture by Church, is now in England, and is being most extensively and favorably criticized by connoisseurs and the press. The artist is somewhere between Halifax and Greenland sketching ice-bergs. Envious man!

But from the poetry of life let us come down to the contemplation of some of its prose. Our new City Inspector is just now doing wonders for New York. A few weeks ago he found a new depository for dead animals, namely, at the bottom of East River, and ten thousand well defined and separate smells from this quarter will no longer offend the nostrils of the delicate. Lately he commenced on the streets, and in an incredible short time have been removed; and still more recently he has developed another feature of his campaign, by a vigorous raid on the piggeries, which abound in the upper part of the city, and are a nuisance of the worst kind. Under his systematic administration of the broom and water, some portions of the city look as if it really had on a clean "bib and tucker"—a change of linen it has not experienced in the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

An enterprising Yankee advertises in one of the daily papers that he has purchased a vessel, and is fitting out an expedition to explore the newly discovered Indian tombs of Chiquis, Central America. Of course it is one of those speculations which spring up like mushrooms in times of excitement, and we shall probably hear no more of it.

I have seen some of the golden images which have been dug out of these tombs, the largest of which representing a bat, is about five inches long, by three and a half inches wide, and weighs six ounces. There are also representations of the eagle, frog, peccary, and other animals, all exhibiting much ingenuity in the modelling.—The gold is generally fine, and worth as merchandise $17 an ounce.

Much gossip is afloat concerning the resignation of Hon. Daniel E. Sickles, and it is said that a petition has been extensively circulated in his own district, requesting him to do so. Be this as it may, it is as long as he has a chance of holding out his seat in Congress. Should the endeavor of his competitor prove successful, however, Mr. Sickles will then retire to private life, and in company with his wife and her parents, take up his residence for a while in Italy.

The celebrated Forrest Case, so long in adjudication, is now on the eve of a final settlement. Pending the arbitration of the referee in whose hands the matter rests, the court allows Mrs. Forrest $200 per month, and $1500 counsel fees, out of her husband's estate. She will probably be awarded from three to five thousand dollars a year, the former sum being the amount of the verdict of the jury who years ago tried the case. The arrangements will amount to something like $20,000.

From the statement in the financial columns of the business in Dry Goods at this port, one would imagine that our merchants were "going it blind," in entering the extravagances of the wives and daughters of Fifth avenue and Madison square. The totals, compared with the previous two seasons, stand thus:

1858	30,169,353
1859	71,782,985

Seventy-one millions of silks, satins, and laces.

The result is evident enough. This overstocking must bring the prices of our home manufactures down to a point which will leave them no chance for existence. Theatrical matters are dull. The Florences have been playing all summer to four houses at Wallack's, and have introduced several local burlesques that have had a good run. The Ravens are at Niblo's, and as usual, doing well. The Palace Garden is, however, the most popular re-ort of the summer, its attractions being the best of music, feminine loveliness, graceful dancing, tasteful toilettes, expensive crinolines, and "disposable" ice cream. The Metropolitan is undergoing alterations under the directorship of Mr. Stuart, the former efficient manager of Wallack's. He will have a good company. Something in fact is going on all the time. It is impossible to feel ennui, and that is a great comfort, as the old lady said when she found that though her son had been breakfasted on by the sharks, Abigail Jane had got his "chist."
